Household Peril.

Under this head the Boston Journal of Chemistry names several dangerous substances which find their way into households. There are two or three volatile liquids used in families which are particularly dangerous, and must be employed, if at all, with special care. Benzine, ether and strong ammonia constitute this class of agents. The two first named liquids are employed in cleaning gloves and other wearing apparel, and in removing oil stains from carpets, curtains, etc. Liquids so highly volatile will flash into vapor as soon as the cork of the vessel containing them is removed. These vapors are very combustible, and will inflame at long distances from ignited candles or gas flames, and consequently they should never be used in the evening when the house is lighted. Explosions of a very dangerous nature will occur if the vapor of these liquids is permitted to escape into rooms in considerable quantity. In view of the great hazard of handling these liquids, cautious housekeepers will not allow them to be brought into their dwellings, and this course is commendable.

As regards ammonia, or water of ammonia, it is a very powerful agent, especially the stronger kinds sold by druggists. An accident in its use has recently come under our notice, in which a young lady lost her life from taking a few drops through mistake. Breathing the gas under certain circumstances causes serious harm to the lungs and membranes of the mouth and nose. It is an agent much used at the present time for cleaning purposes, and it is objectionable if proper care is used in its employment. The vessel holding it should be kept apart from other containing medicines, etc., and rubber stoppers should be used.

Onalio acid is considerably employed in families for cleaning brass and copper utensils. The substance is highly poisonous, and must be kept and used with great caution. In crystalline structure it closely resembles sulphate of magnesia or Epsom salts, and therefore frequent mistakes are made and lives lost. Every agent which goes into families among inexperienced persons should be kept in a safe place, and labeled properly and used with care.

Freaks of Fashion in Paris. The taste for strong amelle in a dwelling room is so prevalent that small sets are sewn in the corner of carpets and mats in order to disseminate fragrance. Jewelry is not quite so Modish as the rest. The height of ton is to wear a small enameled pig on a chain or arm let. It is not called porte-bonheur, but porte veine, the word veine (avoir de la veine) being the slang of bonheur. This pig is not only made of beautiful enamel in imitation of the animal in its juvenile state, called "sucking" in British verbiage, but it is manufactured of three, five, and seven, all of a row, for shawl pins, etc., and in silver or gold. Before the adoption of this animal in polite society there was no term so awful to the French as the word cochon. The unaccountable actualities in jewelry originated in Austria, where he who sees a pig considers the event a good omen. In the Empress of Austria wears one, in the same way as Neapolitans wear a coral horn, to frighten off the effect of an evil eye.

Prettier are the symbols worn by professionals and what allude to their career. Thus, an artist wears the gold palette with imitation or real gems for red, green, white and other points. The first who set this fashion was Mlle. Jacquemart, who received such a brooch as a gift from M. Thiers. The golden lyre is adopted by Mme. Viardot, the golden mask by Mlle. Sarah Bernhardt, and the golden whip by a diva of the theatre.

A Subject of Interest to All. The money annually wasted in Decatur on comparatively worthless boots and shoes amounts, no doubt, to many thousands of dollars. This is partly owing to a mistaken idea of economy on the part of customers, inducing them to endeavor to buy at too cheap rates, and partly to the fact that many dealers are over anxious to sell at a low figure and at the same time just as anxious to make a big profit, and so sell goods that never ought to be made. The best is the cheapest, and the rule applies to nothing so well as to boots and shoes, those who would have the best must expect to pay a corresponding price, and should insist on an equivalent in quality. It is a mistake to think that dealers are not to blame when a boot or shoe does not wear well. The price should govern the amount of wear, although fine articles need some care, and will not long withstand the rough treatment too often given them. At Ferris' shoe store you can get the very best boots and shoes that can be made at a reasonable price, and every customer pays the same price. Plain figures, Ev July 30 - d&w

District Convention.

The Republicans of Macon and De Witt counties, comprising the 14th senatorial district, are requested to send delegates to a representative convention to be held at CLINTON, on SUNDAY, AUG. 10th, 1891, at ten o'clock, a. m., for the purpose of nominating two candidates for representative. The number of delegates from each county will be entitled to as follows:

Macon county, 8
De Witt county, 8
J. O. ULLICH, Chairman
J. A. BARNES, Secretary.

TANNER'S FEAT.

A special dispatch to the REPUBLICAN from New York, announces that Doctor Tanner completed his forty days' fast at noon to-day. While all people will admire the indomitable pluck manifested by the doctor, and rejoice to know that he is in the midst of the terrible ordeal, there will be a general disposition to inquire whether such exhibitions are calculated to accomplish any practical good.

TANNER'S SONG: "Oh, dat water-mill!"

Gov. CULLOM speaks at Macomb to-day.

The Republicans of the fifth district have nominated Major R. M. A. Hawt, of Mt. Carroll, for congress.

DAN KADEL, a well-known musician and band leader who resided many years at Bloomington, died at Dallas, Texas, on the 4th instant.

The end of John A. Brown, Esq., which appears in to-day's paper, is just the kind of one that ought to come from a staunch, true Republican—one devoted to the records of the party from principle. The nomination of a candidate by a regularly organized convention should end all disputes and unify all interests. This is the very essence of good faith in politics.

"Will you walk into my parlor" said the spider to the fly, and tradition records the result. The same thing has been happening all over the world from time immemorial. The latest instance occurred in Decatur on Thursday last. Brother Bane threw open the door and invited the Democratic editor to call. The editor was reckless enough to accept the invitation, and his mutilated remains were borne out on a stretcher, metaphorically speaking.

HAVING failed to make any of their slanders on Garfield stick the Democrats are now about to create a diversion by publishing the confessions of the noted whisky-drinker, McDonald, and they propose to give Grant such a shaking up as will make every Democrat and rebel in the country imagine himself in danger. There's nothing makes a Democrat feel so good as to hear somebody abuse Grant. Mud-throwing seems to be the most congenial occupation they are fond of, and so long as it affords them so much gratification, and is so harmless, why not let the poor creatures have their fun? The Lord knows, they have little enough to be jolly over.

The above wood and Du Quois soil coal at McClelland's coal yard. [10-29-91]

This editor of the Review is very glad to announce that the people need have no fears as to the payment of the rebel debt, in case his party gain possession of the government, because they are prohibited from any such course by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution. That benign prohibition puts all charges of that nature at rest, according to our Democratic cotemporary, and with him we rejoice and are exceedingly glad on account of it. But as the matter of past records is talked of considerably just now, will the editor of the Review please inform his readers (and ours too, for we shall take pleasure in spreading his answer before the public) whether he advocated the adoption of this very timely amendment, in 1866. The party with which he is then affiliated, and to which he still belongs, very generally opposed the ratification of the amendment, as we very well know, but the editor of the Review doubtless supported it, inasmuch as he is so glad now that it is a part of the fundamental law, and we shall be glad to be able to make the announcement of the fact by his authority. An answer is respectfully solicited.

EVERY young man ought to read the speech of Gen. Garfield which we print in to-day's paper. It is an appeal to young men about to vote for the first time, and was delivered at Cleveland last fall, just on the eve of the Ohio election, and is in Garfield's best vein.

A Voice from Vermont.
The Democratic caucus of Rutland, Vermont, elected G. C. Underhill as one of the town delegates to the democratic county convention, and after reviewing the recent course of the two parties, he concludes:

The past four years have proven that the republican party can administer the affairs of the nation honestly and well, and that all industries and all people can prosper under it; and during the same time it has been just as clearly proven that the democracy, as now controlled, is tainted with disloyalty and treason, and are seeking national power for the sole purpose of building up the South at the expense of the North. Believing it to be the duty of every freeman to cast his vote for the right, irrespective of party, I shall cast my vote in support of the republican party at the coming election.

GEN. JOHN BEATTY, the famous Ohio stalwart, in a speech at Columbus the other day, had the following splendid summing up as to what the much derided "bloody shirt" means:

Of course it will be said that I am wearing the bloody shirt. So it is, the costliest banner that ever greeted the public eye. It was colored and enriched by the blood of heroes. It suggests the innumerable sacrifices made by the nation for personal freedom and political equality. It suggests memories of tender partings at the homestead; days of marching, nights of vigil and fury of battle. It suggests the sudden clasp of fraternal hands on the field; the solemn farewell, the last prayer to God, the missing man at roll call. Under this flag we shall conquer. The time may come, indeed, when we shall fold it up tenderly and lay it away with care; but it is not now; it will not be until the Democratic party, saturated as it is with treason, ulcerated and rotten to the very core, shall by the popular verdict be pronounced dead and damned. Its record is a catalogue of crimes; its existence is a menace to good government, and so long as it lifts its brutal head to the sunshine it will be the duty of just men to strike.

THE Ohio State Journal has received a letter from one of its correspondents, written years ago, who, it is justly said, is a sample of many thousands who will vote the first time this fall. The boy writes from Lithopolis, Ohio, saying:

The question has been asked, "Why don't you vote the democratic ticket for a change?" I will give the reasons why I do not and will not vote the democratic ticket. My reasons are—
1. Democrats started my father to death in a rebel prison.
2. Democrats tried to sever this Union.
3. Democrats sought to extend slavery all over this country.
4. Southern Democrats constitute the tree, and Northern Democrats are the "grafts," and "by the grafts shall ye know the tree."
5. "But," says one, "we are no rebels." Mayhap you are not; but "birds of a feather flock together." You all vote one ticket, and you are in hearty sympathy with the old rebels.

They Are Delighted.
As was to be expected, the South is delighted with Hancock's letter. Its plaudits on the nomination are familiar to Southern ears, for they have been shouted by every Southern statesman in every campaign for twenty-five years. The Southern journals all recognize the familiar state rights flavor also, for even so cautious a commentator as Mr. Waterman says of the letter: "From first to last it breathes the same spirit, speaks the same language, which rung through those 'famous orders' to which the soldier-statesman owes his present position." That is the interpretation which the North puts upon it also, and the result will be a solid Northern vote against the "soldier-statesman" in November.

General Garfield delivered a speech at Cleveland last October, in the course of which he said:
"Now, fellow-citizens, a word before I leave you on the very eve of the holy day of God—a fit moment to connect ourselves finally to the great work of next Tuesday morning. I see in this great audience to-night a great many young men, young men who are about to cast their first vote. I want to give you a word of suggestion and advice. I heard a very brilliant thing said by a boy the other day up in one of our northwestern counties. He said to me, 'General, I have a great mind to vote the Democratic ticket.' That was not the brilliant thing. [Laughter.] I said to him, 'Why?' 'Why,' said he, 'my father is a Republican, and my brothers are Republicans, and I am a Republican all over, but I want to be an independent man, and I don't want anybody to say, 'That fellow voted the Republican ticket just because his dad does,' and I have half a mind to vote the Democratic ticket just to prove my independence.' I did not like the thing the boy suggested, but I did admire the boy that wanted to have some independence of his own."
"Now, I tell you, young man, don't vote the Republican ticket just because your father votes it. Don't vote the Democratic ticket, even if he does vote it. [Laughter.] But let me give you one word of advice, as you are about to pitch your tent in one of the great political camps. Your life is full and buoyant with hope now, and I beg you, when you pitch your tent, pitch it among the living and not among the dead. [Applause.] If you are inclined to pitch it among the Democratic people and wish that party, let me go with you for a moment while we survey the ground where I HOPE YOU WILL NOT SHORTLY LIE. It is a sad place, young man, for you to put your young life into. It is to me far more like a graveyard than like a camp for the living. Look at it! It is billowed all over with the graves of dead issues, of buried opinions, of exploded theories, of disgraced doctrines. You cannot live in comfort in such a place. [Laughter.] Why, look here! Here is a little double mound. I look down on it and I read, 'Sacred to the memory of Squatter Sovereignty and the Dred Scott decision.' A million and a half of Democrats voted for that, but it has been dead fifteen years—died the hand of Abraham Lincoln, and here it lies. [Applause.] Young man, that is not the place for you.

"But look a little farther. Here is another mound—a black tomb—and beside it, as our distinguished friend said, there towers to the sky a monument of four million pairs of human fetters taken from the arms of slaves, and I read on its headstone this: 'Sacred to the memory of human slavery.' For forty years of its infamous life the Democratic party taught that it was divine—God's institution. They defended it, they stood around it, they followed it to the grave as a mourner. But here it lies dead by the hand of Abraham Lincoln. [Applause.] Dead by the power of the Republican party. [Applause.] Dead by the justice of Almighty God. [Great applause and cheers.] Don't camp there, young man. 'But here is another—
A LITTLE PRIMER TOMMY [laughter]—and I read across its yellow face, in lurid, bloody letters, these words: 'Sacred to the memory of State Sovereignty and Secession.' Twelve millions of Democrats mustered around it in arms to keep it alive; but here it lies, shot to death by the million guns of the Republic. [Applause.] Here it lies, its shrine burnt to ashes under the blazing rafters of the burning Confederacy. [Applause.] It is dead! I would not have you stay in there a minute, even in this balmy air, to look at such a place. [Laughter.]

"But just before I leave it I discover a new-made grave, a little mound—short. The grass has hardly sprouted over it, and all around it I see torn pieces of paper with the word 'fat' on them—[laughter]—and I look down in curiosity, wondering what the little grave is, and I read on it: 'Sacred to the memory of the Rag Baby'—[laughter]—nursed in the brain of all the fanaticism of the world—[laughter]—rocked by Thomas Ewing, George H. Pendleton, and a few others throughout the land. But it died on the 1st of January, 1879, and the one hundred and forty millions of gold that God made, and not fat power, lie upon its little carcass to keep it down forever. [Prolonged applause.]

"Oh, young man, come out of that! [Laughter.] That is no place in which to put your young life. Come out, and come over into the camp of liberty, of order, of law, of justice, of freedom. 'Amem!', of all that is glorious under these night stars.

"Is there any death here in our camp? Yes! yes! Three hundred and fifty thousand soldiers, the noblest band that ever trod the earth, died to make this camp a camp of glory and of liberty forever. [Tremendous applause.]

"But there are no dead issues here. There are no dead issues here. Hang out our banner from under the blue sky this night until it shall sweep the green turf under your feet! It hangs over our camp. Read away up under the stars the inscription we have written on it, lo! these twenty-five years.

"Twenty-five years ago the republican party was MARRIED TO LIBERTY, and this is our silver wedding. [Great applause.] A worthy married pair love each other better on the day of their silver wedding than on the day of their first espousals; and we are true to Liberty to-day, and nearer to God than we were when we spoke our first word of liberty. Read away up under the sky across our starry banner that first word we uttered twenty-five years ago! What is it? 'Slavery shall never extend over another foot of the territories of the great West.' [Applause.] Is that dead or alive? Alive, thank God, forevermore! [Applause.] And truer to-night than it was the hour it was written! [Applause.] Then it was a hope, a promise, a purpose. To-night it is equal with the stars—immortal history and immortal truth. [Applause.]

"Come down the glorious steps of our banner. Every great record we have made we have vindicated with our blood and our truth. It sweeps the ground and it touches the stars. Come there, young man, and put in your young life where all is living, and where nothing is dead—but the heroes who defended it! [Applause.] I think these young men will do that. [Of course they will!]

New York, August 7, 1 p. m.—Dr. Tanner completed his 40 days' fast at noon to-day. He complains of nervousness in his stomach, appears quite weak and in much internal misery. The Doctor was watched very closely during the closing hours and minutes of his fast, and when the self-imposed task was completed the attending physician gave him a glass of diluted milk—two-thirds water and one-third milk—which he swallowed slowly, and then ate a slice of watermelon with an evident relish.
Three or four times during the night the famished man vomited. His feet were bathed in mustard and water shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. At 8:30 he dressed and laid down on his cot at an open window, his head resting on his hands. Visitors commenced to flock to the Hall as early as 7 o'clock this morning, and up to noon when the fast was closed great excitement was manifested.
New York, Aug. 6.—Dr. Tanner entered upon the last day of his fast at noon. His pain is intense, and ever since last night every move he makes either induces emesis or causes eruptions of gas. A chemical analysis of the fluid from his stomach, it is claimed, shows that the fast has been honestly conducted. Every hour he walks around the inclosure without assistance, that the spectators may see him. At 1 a. m. he was quite sick. Fifteen minutes later he was lying on his cot with his knees drawn up to his stomach. He asked the watchers to notice his breathing, without giving a reason therefor. His respiration was fourteen to the minute and natural. He fell asleep again but soon after made an effort to vomit. He brought up only a small quantity of matter. After a sleep of an hour the Doctor again drew himself up in a heap and soon had another attack of nausea, vomiting mucous and water. The suggestion that a mustard plaster be put on his stomach was scouted by the Doctor, who said nothing would relieve the discomfort but beef, wine and iron. He remained quiet and comfortable until nearly 8, when he ejected from his stomach two ounces of water tinged with bile. He was given at 8:15 two and a half ounces of water, which was soon followed by another attack of nausea. A mustard foot-bath made him quite comfortable again, however. At 10 o'clock the Doctor drank four ounces of water, and then, descending to the lower hall walked one lap. He repeated the pedestrian performance at 11 and 12 o'clock, and in the interval drank three ounces of water. At noon he declared his condition good. Two proposals of marriage and an offer from the Chicago Lyceum manager for the Doctor to lecture through the western states were among the morning mail. A very large crowd is in the hall. Dr. Tanner is lively this morning, and looks more like a man undergoing the strain of mental rather than physical trouble. Dr. Green, whose opinion will prevail in the emergency, says he will have Tanner break his fast to-morrow with diluted milk, two-thirds water and one-third milk.

AMERICUS, Webster Co., Ga., August 6.—Last evening William L. Gunneels, a well-to-do farmer, living twenty miles west of here, left home to visit a sick neighbor, and, returning at 10 o'clock in the evening, found his wife and nine of his ten small children in a horrible sleep from the effects of morphia, administered in lemonade by Mrs. Gunneels. There is no doubt but that she prepared the fatal beverage and administered it to her children and drank of it herself with fatal intent. Mr. Gunneels was married to this, his second wife, about ten years ago, and has by her four children. The other six are by a previous wife, and as far as is known, the stepmother has been a dutiful and kind parent to them. Medical aid was immediately summoned, but Mrs. Gunneels soon died, and no hopes of recovery are entertained for three of the children. The others are believed to be out of danger. A note in the handwriting of Mrs. Gunneels was found under the morphia on the table, in which she had stated that she had deliberately administered morphia to the children and herself, with the intention of destroying them all, and that she was not actuated by any domestic trouble.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 6.—General Sherman says of Dalrymple's project to invade Mexico from Texas: "The invasion would not amount to anything in my opinion. The central laws between the United States and the Mexican Government would of course have to be maintained by the United States army, if necessary. Hence, should Dalrymple attempt an invasion, he would, in all probability, be whipped by the United States and Mexican forces."

WITHOUT THE USE OF DRUGS, ARE RE-QUESTED TO SEND FOR THE ELECTRIC
REVIEW, AN ILLUSTRATED JOUR-NAL, WHICH IS PUBLISHED FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION.

IT TREATS UPON HEALTH, HYGIENE, and Physical Culture, and is a complete encyclopedia of information for invalids and those who suffer from Nervous, Rheumatic, and other ailments. Every subject that bears upon health and human happiness, receives attention in its pages, and the many questions asked by invalids, who have derived a cure, are answered, and valuable information is furnished to all who are afflicted with similar ailments.
The subject of Electric Light and Heat, and the benefits and one of the most important topics concerning humanity are daily considered and explained.

YOUNG MEN

And others who suffer from Nervous and Physical Debility, Loss of Manly Vigor, Premature Exhaustion and the many ills that attend early immoderate, are especially benefited by consulting its contents.

The ELECTRIC REVIEW exposes the unmitigated frauds practiced by quacks and medical impostors who pretend to "cure" diseases, and point out the easy, simple, and effective road to Health, Vigor and Bodily Energy.

Physically Fine, but Vile Morally.

J. Talboys Wheeler's Short History of India.

The Afghans are Mohammedans of the Sunni faith; they reverence
the first four Khalifs, and have no particular veneration for the prophet (Khalif) Ali. They are split up into tribes, clans, and families, each under its own head, commander, or Sinnar, and they are often at war or feud, and often engaged in conspiracies, rebellions and assassinations.

They are tall, burly, active men,
with olive complexions, dark Jewish features, black eyes, and long black hair hanging down in curls.

Their countenances are calm, and they affect a frankness and bonhomie;
they will sometimes indulge in a rude jocularity; but their expression is savage, and evil passions are often raging in their hearts like hidden fires. They are bloodthirsty, deceitful, and depraved; ready to sell their country, their honor, and their very souls for lucre. They care for nothing but fighting, delighting in the din of arms, the turmoil of battle and the plunder of the killed and wounded; without any relish for home life or domestic ties; without a sting of remorse or sense of shame. There are no people on earth that have a finer physique or a viler moral. They are the relics of a nation who have played out their parts in history.

In bygone ages they conquered Hin-dustan on the one side and Persia on the other; but the conquering instinct has died away amidst the incessant discord of family feuds and domestic broils.

The Express Company work 370 horses. Read what Supt. KNIGHT has to say:
I have been using Liniment on the horses of the American and U. S. Express Co.'s stables for 24 years. I never met any that had one-tenth the merit of Whittier's Liniment. Our stables are open; call and see for yourselves.
H. KNIGHT, Supt. U. S. Ex. Co.
Read what Graves & Lomis, the largest breeders of horses in the State of Illinois, have to say:
For thirty years we have been using all kinds of liniment manufactured for horses, and, of all the liniments, Whittier's stands at the head of the list for Scratches, Greased Heel, Sprains, Galled Spots, and Sores of any kind. It will give all horsemen satisfaction.
GRAVES & LOMIS.
Scratches, Greased Heel, Thrush, Galled Spots from any cause, heal up in from two to three applications, and you can work the horse every day, and you can cure him at the same time. It will take out all inflammation in a few moments.
There is no remedy on earth that equals Whittier's Liniment for RHEUMATISM.
It will have the same effect upon the human. Piles, Scrofula, Scald Head, Catarrh, Pimples or Blisters on Face or Body, Old Sores or Fresh Cuts.
